Curling Club Formed in Irma

About twenty-five residents of Irma and district attended a public meeting in Hedley's Hall last Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing ways and means of building a curling rink in Irma.

The Irma Curling Club was formed and the following officers elected: President, Ted Berth; 1st Vice-President, J. Fletcher; 2nd Vice-President, I. S. Reid; Secretary-treasurer, R. H. Ott; Ice Manager, S. M. Brown; Caretaker, E. E. Sharkey.

The membership fees will be Gents $8.00, Ladies $3.00 and Juniors $2.50. It was reported that over $300.00 had been raised so far by subscription and that the building material and rocks would cost $1,000.00. It was expected that the building could be erected by voluntary labor.

It was decided that no start would be made on a building until sufficient money was raised for the material.

FARMERS' CONFERENCE

SEES BIG ATTENDANCE

A large and representative attendance of farmers and councillors from Gilt Edge, Grizzly Bear, Rattle River and Vale Districts met on Saturday last under the sponsorship of the M.D. Councils and farm organizations. These meetings are a new departure in farmer meetings in that they include all farmer interests and attempts to make each meeting an independent and free enterprise.

Mr. H. U. Taylor was elected as chairman, with Mr. Ken Tory as secretary of the meeting.

A resolutions committee consisting of Messrs. Reynolds, Collette, Garneau, Gardiner and F. Ford was elected, and they later presented the following resolutions which were all endorsed by those present:

1. To ask the Federal government to open the Buffalo Park as a community pasture.

2. Resolution on Parity Prices: (a) A planned production policy for agriculture; (b) Make funds available to advance farm production; (c) A moratorium for all secured debts for duration of war; (d) Security of tenure for farmers for duration; (e) that a floor be placed under farm prices; (f) that parity prices be established at 1926-29 level; (g) that no price ceiling be set below cost of production; (h) that a national farm production and marketing board be established under a single executive and that a majority of representatives be elected by farmers; (i) that crop insurance take the place of unsatisfactory bonus system; (j) Initial price of $1.00 for William for first 2,000 bushels; (k) policy of farm storage in sealed granaries; (l) that freight rates be equalized.

3. That a farmers' representative be placed in each packing plant to check on rail grading of hogs for producers.

4. To encourage Canadian Co-operative implements in organising

5. Protest the use of Orders-in-Council method of government, and that any acts put in force to date be debated in the House of Commons.

6. That we favor conscription of all wealth to precede or accompany conscription of man power.

7. That a continuation committee be elected to carry on the work and that this committee call another meeting as soon as possible. Those elected under this resolution were: Messrs. K. Tory, Councillors Arthur Collette, Cassels and Gardiner; Hissett (U.F.A.); Zehnder and Golding (U.F.C.).

During the meeting an address was given by Mr. Calvin Colvin, of Camrose, on the co-operative implements plan, and co-operative effort and organization, for which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered.

Wedding Bells

FUDER-WHIDDEN

A very pretty wedding took place in St. Stephen's Chapel, Edmonton on November 8th at 2 p.m. When Violet Jean, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Whidden of Jarro, was united in marriage to Roy Murray Fuder, third son of Mr. and Mrs. May Fuder of Irma. Rev. Thompson officiated. The bride looked charming coming down the aisle on the arm of her father as the wedding march was played. She wore a floor length gown of white sheer and three-quarter length veil with orange blossom wreath, she carried a bouquet of pink roses. Miss Irma Orr was bridesmaid and wore a floor length gown of peach net and carried a bouquet of white roses. The best man was Earl Fuder, brother of the groom. Only relatives and a few friends attended the wedding. Miss Maxine Bolton of Red Deer sang, "O, Promise Me" while the register was being signed.

After the ceremony the guests were invited to lunch at the American Dairy Cafe to which 20 sat down. A three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table.

The young couple returned to Red Deer where they have been working for the past year. They will make their home there for the present.

We all join in wishing Jean and Roy happiness and long life together.

RED CROSS TO COLLECT FUNDS FOR RUSSIAN AID

The Irma branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has received correspondence from the Alberta division regarding an "Appeal for Russia" for the furnishing of medical and hospital supplies.

Contributions for this cause may be handed to STEVE HLYNKA, of Irma, who will account to the Irma branch of the Red Cross Society.

Any monies collected in this appeal do not form any part of Red Cross funds, but only acting at the request of the government as its agency.

Red Cross Notes

Heard at the Red Cross sewing meeting last Tuesday afternoon: First lady: "I had some letters from my brother in Egypt today and he is loud in his praise of the Canadian Red Cross."

Second lady: "Oh, is he? In what way do you mean?"

First lady: "Well, you see, for some unknown reason he has not received one of the many parcels mother and I have sent him in the two years he has been stationed there, so he is more than glad to have the Red Cross help to get for socks, gloves and other things that he needs."

Second lady: "But he would have to pay for those replacements, would he not?"

First lady: "Oh, my, no. They just give him any help he needs and that's why he can't say enough thanks to the Canadian Red Cross, especially the ladies who do such lots of lovely knitting."

Yes, friends, these are facts, and doesn't it make you feel proud to have a part in this great work, if only a very small part, for it is the small parts, like strands all working or woven together that makes the mighty cables by which great work can be done.

Capt. Kelly, of the recruiting party in Irma Monday, claims he knows for sure Irma is one of the towns that head the list for the most sewing, knitting and work for the Red Cross. So keep up the good work, folks, and hats off to the ladies. Our Red Cross room is a place of real activity, fun and laughter and every one takes in good part the jokes that are freely handed out even if it is on themselves.

New members are added every sewing day and all are made welcome and work found for all. So don't be afraid to help. There is always room for one more.

Value Of Propaganda

New weapons and new methods of combat now used in the second world war, have brought many strange expressions into common usage. "fifth column," "Molotov bread basket," "balloon barrage," and numerous other terms, unfamiliar before the present war, now appear quite naturally in the news columns of our papers and radio news bulletins.

One important weapon, however, has an old name into which events of this war have put a new and wider meaning. That word is "propaganda," and it was introduced in its newest form by the highly publicized Dr. Goebbels.

Much has appeared in the news lately of the measures taken by the Russians in this regard. They have effectively disrupted German announcements, broadcast news of German losses in Russia, and otherwise harassed the rigidly controlled air waves of the Reich. There have been stories, too, of the brilliant "V for Victory" campaign launched by the British Broadcasting Corporation. Results of this clever piece of propaganda are recorded every day in uprising and unrest in the occupied countries. Vichy officials blame the unrest in France on this campaign, the full story of which will not be known until the people of the occupied countries have joined with the free democracies in the final destruction of Naziism.

Use Other Methods

This, however, is only one way in which the B.B.C. is fighting and defeating Dr. Goebbels, just as effectively as the Royal Air Force is sweeping the Luftwaffe out of the skies. For twenty-four hours of every day the B.B.C. broadcasts authentic news and commentaries to every corner of Europe. These programs are given in all the European languages, including the dialects of isolated districts. That they are regularly heard in the occupied countries is known beyond a shadow of doubt, and this despite very rigid Nazi rulings and severe penalties for infractions of the verboten order. Through secret means, known only to the British Government, the B.B.C. has a very good estimate of the number of people who listen to these programs. Letters, too, reach Britain by devious ways, telling of the hope and courage these forbidden broadcasts bring. Countless numbers who are now in bondage, suffering from every form of persecution, are looking hopefully forward to the day of their deliverance from the Nazi yoke. It is to hear what they recognize as truth, that the oppressed peoples of Europe risk their very lives to listen to the British programs. It is beyond doubt that they must be greatly heartened to know that elsewhere in the world strong forces are working to bring about their release, and that they will see yet another "new order" in Europe based on freedom, and relief from all those who are now under Nazi domination.

For Final Victory

Particular effort is injected into programs which are broadcast to all classes of people in Germany, and that these programs are heard in the Reich is corroborated by no less an authority than the diminutive Dr. Goebbels himself, who goes on the air frequently to refute statements made in B.B.C. broadcasts.

In France it is commonly stated that there are three governments—Paris, Vichy and the B.B.C. And so, on this front as on many others, a strong and unrelenting attack is being made. When the final victory is reached, those who have carried on this unending task, will take their place with others who have taken Nazi weapons and wielding them with a deeper courage and a greater conviction than the Nazis could ever know, have brought about ultimate victory for the forces of freedom and democracy.

Story About Illinois Railroad Clerk Reads Like Fairy Tale

Richard Grady, 73, of East St. Louis, Ill., retired railroad clerk, received a $26.03 paycheck from the Illinois Central Railroad—38 years late.

Grady worked as a laborer for the railroad for fifteen days in 1903. But when he started for the payor to collect his money, high water kept him from the tracks. Four days later when he could reach the tracks the payor had been moved.

He attempted to collect from the railroad but had lost his claim ticket for the money and didn't get the check. Last summer, after he had retired, he had an attorney write the railroad. A checkup on the books showed he never was paid and the check was drawn up.

War Makes Many Changes

Dinner At Savoy Much Simpler Than In Peace Time

Noel Barber, in Overseas Daily Mail says: My mention of dinners reminds me that I did see at the Savoy one week the strangest menu they have probably ever had. Sir Courtauld Thomson gave a lunch to the new Governor of Bermuda, Viscount Knollys. There was an imposing list of guests, whose names were printed on one side of the menu. And on the other side, the actual menu. It consisted of only three words: Macaroni, Chicken, Sweet.

That was all. A good idea, too, except perhaps to the artistic head waiter, who took one look at the small slip of paper and muttered to me: "I don't know why they don't just print 'Food'."

The point is, of course, that you get just as much food as you need, and far less indignation than you deserve—far less, anyway, than you would have got at the Savoy's old-time menus. I looked up one used for a party given about 50 years ago by the Duke of Orleans in the same room as this week's lunch.

On that menu were 18 courses and six different wines. It was considered bad manners to miss a course in those days. . . .

The Heart Of Norway

The funeral of an R.A.F. pilot in Norway became an occasion for a demonstration of anti-German feeling as fishermen and farmers contributed to the cost of the funeral and women wept and men sang national songs.

Could Never Be Trusted

Food Sent To Europe Would Be Taken By Nazis
Here are some facts in one day's news that bear on the proposal of Mr. Hoover to feed the people of the occupied countries of Europe—his plea for the women and children who are in dire need.

Germany has been taking from France 14,000 head of cattle a month, much of the wine so essential in a land of impure water, all the reserves of cheese, potatoes, sugar, wheat and fruit.

Walther Funk, Germany's economics minister (that is, director of looting), was in Rome arranging with Italy for stripping the Ukraine of foodstuffs and other supplies and dividing up the spoils.

The German army in Rumania is now taking from that country its food reserves and clothing. Wearing apparel is so scarce that the price has skyrocketed.

Still, Mr. Hoover, with laudible purpose but with no relation to reality, continues to urge his plan. He talks of "safeguards." Can he really believe any could be devised that Germany would not get around or else just trample on?

If Germany will not France of her own supplies when Hitler professes to seek the collaboration of Frenchmen, why wouldn't he loot her of our supplies?

If Hitler will take food away from Rumania when Rumanians are fighting Germany's battles, what chance is there that he would respect signs saying that the food came from the United States, for which he has stated his contempt?

Finally, the arrangements going forward for the looting of the Ukraine show how consistently Germany pursues her policies. She is going to take what food she wants wherever it is found.—Milwaukee Journal.

Museum Pieces

Articles Of Clothing Worn By Hitler Smuggled Out Of Germany

Articles of clothing "guaranteed" to have been worn by Hitler have been smuggled out of Germany into Switzerland and Spain. The recipients have paid handsomely for the trophies.

This traffic in a notoriety's raiment is by no means new and accounts for the fact that a fair number of Napoleonic relics survive in museums all over Europe.

When a dictator dies national collectors become interested in his wardrobe. While buying the stuff in advance is always a gamble, the gamblers reckon that coming events are casting reassuring shadows before. Possibly they are waiting to disinfest and display that jacket which Adolf threatened to wear until the war was won.—Glasgow Herald.

An Effective Reply

Ministry Of Food Shows Goebbels United Kingdom Not Bankrupt

The British ministry of food announced it had made contracts with Argentina, Uruguay, New Zealand and Australia for 1,000,000 tons of meat. A contract with Brazil will be concluded shortly.

This is the most effective reply to Goebbels' propaganda in the American countries that the United Kingdom now is bankrupt and cannot buy any more South American meat," a spokesman for the ministry said.

Sure Of Getting Back

The pious, precautionary caterpillar always lays a silken track whenever it leaves the nest so that it may find its way back, and it always travels with others of its kind, end to end, in single file.

South African laws protect wildflowers and several persons have been fined in the courts for selling them on the city streets.

One of San Francisco's municipal courts set aside three days a week as Chinese days. On those days, all defendants in the court are Chinese.

For Bomber Pilots

Special Prayer Used At Graduation Exercises In Ontario School

"I wish for you chaps good hunting," Air Commodore G. E. Brookes, O.B.E., told the first class of bomber pilots graduating at No. 16 Service Flying Training School, R.C.A.F., at Hagersville, Ontario.

One of the most impressive moments of the wings parade came when Flight Lieutenant J. W. Jennings, station padre, prayed for the bomber pilots. The prayer, he said, was written by an officer of the general list at the Hagersville school.

Author of the prayer Flight Lieutenant Jennings read was not identified. It had been composed especially for the first class and may be used at all succeeding graduations.

"Cast about these pilots, Almighty God, the sure fabric of Thy holy spirit, that they may be gentle in their strength, steadfast in defeat and humble in victory," the prayer went. "Toughen the fibre, we beseech Thee, of their individuality, to the end that, devoting themselves wholly to their duties in Thy service, they be not lonely. Comfort those whom they leave behind, bring them back more full of Thy strength when Thy-time of violence has passed away, and we have peace."

SELECTED RECIPES

Pies! England had them first. A flaky, thick crust, topping a delicious, nourishing one-dish meal which consisted of meat, vegetables, gravy and seasonings made up the original pie as it was served in England centuries ago. The meat or chicken pot pie of to-day is a modern version of this early entree.

The traditional apple pie was developed many years later. The famous fruit pie, and some others, long have been looked upon as "firsts" in desserts. Lemon, chocolate, custard and countless other fillings have been perfected over a period of time, until to-day we find Webster defining a pie as "an article of food consisting of a pastry crust with any of various kinds of fillings."

APPLE PIE MODERNE

6 cups corn flakes.
(1 1/2 cups fine crumbs)
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar

1 quart pared, sliced apples
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter

Roll corn flakes into fine crumbs. Melt butter, add sugar gradually and mix with crumbs. Reserve 1/2 this mixture; press the rest evenly over bottom and sides of pie pan.

Fill pie shell with apples; sprinkle with 1/2 cup sugar mixed with cinnamon. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter; sprinkle remaining crumbs over top and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1 1/2 hour, reduce heat to 300 degrees F. and bake one hour longer, until apples are tender.

Yield: One 9-inch pie.

Demand Her Rights

Woman Held Up Express While She Finished Her Breakfast

A woman passenger who demanded the right to finish her breakfast leisurely in a dining car held up the Pennsylvania Railroad Chicago-New York express train for 15 minutes. Trainmen wanted to shift the diner to a siding in the Harrisburg yards and take on a new car. The passenger refused to budge until she had finished her bacon and eggs. Baffled but discreet, the crew waited.

What Plan Means

National Church in Germany Would Supplant Those Now Existing

The Christian Science Monitor published the abstract of an alleged Nazi plan for a national church to supplant existing churches in the Reich and "annihilate" Christianity. The Monitor said that the scheme was advanced by Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi philosopher and policy-maker, but that this did not necessarily mean it would be carried out.

The Rosenberg version of N. R. (National Reichkirche) would be formed along military lines with the sword the symbol instead of the cross and "Mein Kampf" the credo instead of the Bible, the Monitor said. All other churches or religious orders would have to leave the Reich and there would be a strict ban on any religious group holding or receiving property.

There would be no priests, clergy or scribes in the new order, the Monitor's version related, and only Nazi party orators would have the right to speak in the churches, which would remain only in the architectural sense.

Sheep-Dogs On Payroll

Work Without Orders On Great Western Railway In Wales

The Great Western Railway (reports a correspondent) has 25 sheep-dogs on its pay-sheets in Wales at places where sheep often break through the fences, not only endangering their lives but delaying the train's progress.

The dogs, working without orders, find obscure openings in fences through which to shepherd the flock back. They learn to develop "flock sense"; if they are caught between trains on adjacent lines they lie down until both have passed.

If maintenance men, working on the line, do not heed the noise of an on-coming train the dogs bark at them and refuse to leave until the last workman is out of the way.—Manchester Guardian.

Hay Was Valuable

Grass In Green Park, London, Allowed To Grow Tall

Most picturesque London scene recently was haymaking in the Green Park. Nearly 40 loads were taken away in heavy carts supplied by a South London cartage firm which still keeps 40 Shire horses busy. Normally the grass in the park is mown. This year it was allowed to grow nearly three feet tall. "Of course," said one haymaker, "after cutting hay in this park one feels like setting up a lost property office."

Gesture To Russians

The red flag of Russia flew over a British public building when R. Clive Sanders, mayor of Exeter, England, ordered the Soviet flag hoisted as the city assizes opened. The mayor said the flag was raised "as a gesture to the gallantry of the Soviet people."

An annual total of 7,000 fatal accidents occurs in the homes of England during peacetimes.

Here's Quick Relief from SINUS PAIN

3-Purpose Medicine Helps Clear Out Congested Sinus Areas

ONE best way to get relief from torturing sinus pain is to clear congestion from nasal passages and give sinuses a chance to drain. A few drops of Vicks Vapo-Rol in each nostril is usually enough to bring this comforting relief.

Va-ro-nol is so successful because it does three important things: (1) shrinks swollen membranes of the nose; (2) helps clear out pain-causing congestion and (3) soothes irritation. Many sinus sufferers say it's the best relief they've found. Try it!

CHAPTER XXXV.

Devona went through the next few days as in a troubled dream. Shopping, poring over timetables, phoning for reservations, she attended to every detail with only part of her mind. With the other, she tried to believe all this was really happening.

Talbot, so busy with interviews, publicity agents, costumers, song-writers, she saw only fleetingly. And Dale, preparing for the trial that would—if he won—convict Macias and his ring of henchmen, and put Dale himself directly in line for State District Attorneyship, was working indefatigably.

The trial opened two days before the simple wedding at the Chapel of the Flowers was to take place.

"I wish one of us could be there to hear Dale's speech," Tal said the evening before. "But I can't possibly make it. Not and be ready to leave on Friday. But why can't you go? Or have you too much shopping?"

Devona negatively shook her head. Shopping when there was this chance to watch Dale reach his goal. "I can wait. I'll be there."

So, promptly at 10 that important morning, she slipped into the courtroom, into one of the rear seats, and waited impatiently through all the preliminary court procedure, her eyes on Dale's dark head bent now over a bundle of papers he'd taken from his brief case.

A few minutes later, the trial began. Several witnesses whom she'd never seen were interrogated swiftly, carefully. Dale's questions were simple, clear-cut, direct. His manner, courteous but firm.

Then members of the sinister little gang whom she did recognize were called to the stand. Freda's pallid face, eyes wide with terror, voice almost inaudible, replied nervously to Dale's questions. And probably no one in that audience but felt sorry for the poor girl. Obviously in love with the handsome Macias, she'd let herself in for heartbreak. But she wasn't criminal. Devona was glad when Dale finally dismissed her.

Then Wong, impassive, sly. And his admission that he had been "planted" in Vera Vadne's lovely hacienda simply because Jose Macias knew that Dale was a frequent visitor there, and because Wong was clever at pilfering information from bulging briefcases, faithful in reporting that information to his chief.

Finally, Jose Macias himself was sworn in. Stepping arrogantly to the stand, his handsome, evil dark eyes swept imperiously over the courtroom as he took his oath to tell the whole truth, nothing but the truth.

Anxiously she leaned forward, her ears strained to catch Dale's every word, his every question. And with every moment her pride in him mushroomed bigger and bigger.

And finally, when Dale turned to the jury to summarize his case, he spoke so eloquently, with such quiet, well-reasoned judgment that what he closed and sat down, the little audience burst into spontaneous applause.

Devona's eyes were wet with happy tears as she stumbled out of the gallery and made her way through the corridor outside to Dale's private office.

He came in a moment later, his triumph written in his smile.

"We won, Devona! Congratulations in order," he held out his hands to her. They let the little blonde off, but we've caught the big ones."

"Oh, Dale! I'm so glad, so thrilled for you. You were wonderful, really."

She had intended it should only be a friendly handshake—but somehow, suddenly she was in his arms, her lips pressed hard against his.

He held her tight against his shoulder for a long moment. Then, as behind them, the door swung open, shut again with a little swish, they left apart, flushing guiltily as they fled the intruder.

It was Freda Camp! "Hello," Dale said quietly. "Was there something—?"

"Yes," she stared at him, her blue eyes vacant, wild. "Yes, there is. You can't send Jose to jail. You can't!"

Her pinched white face worked hysterically, as with a jerk, she pulled something out of her pocket and screamed: "You can't do that to him! I'll kill you first!"

Then she fled.

Dale's leap toward her came an instant too late. Staggering, he crumpled to the floor almost at the girl's feet while she, still screaming, buried her face in his hands.

Instantly the room swarmed with people. Officers, clerks and a moment later the Judge himself.

Numb with shock, Devona watched them lift Dale, his face deathly white, and carry him to the worn leather sofa.

"Call an ambulance!" some one shouted.

"I've got the girl!" "Clear the corridor!" Then the wailing shriek of a siren.

At the hospital they made her wait in the corridor outside the room. Wait for hours—pacing the long hall, studying every face that came out of that room for some sign, some signal.

"He's conscious now—or will be soon," a soft-voiced nurse told her finally. "You say you have sent for his brother?"

Devona nodded and tip-toed to the bedside. For the space of a sigh his eyes flickered open, found her face bent close to his own, recognized her.

"Don't go," he murmured, slipped back gain into unconsciousness probably before he heard her promise. "I won't, darling."

Tal came finally and kept vigil with her through that interminable day, the long hours of the night.

And when at 4 the next morning the tide did turn, there was no more hemorrhage, and there was hope, the doctor turned to Devona smiled kindly. "He'll be all right now."

Dale, as if to corroborate the doctor's judgment, opened his eyes, smiled at her, said, "Sure—I'm all right."

Devona lost her head. The strain of the long vigil, her relief, her surging joy sent her flying to that bedside, tears spilling down her cheeks as she sobbed:

"Oh, Dale, my darling. Thank God. If anything had happened—darling, I couldn't have stood it. And pressing her face close to his, she buried her sob in his pillow.

Dale's good arm went around her shaking shoulders quickly. "Here, honey. None of that, please."

She couldn't stop. Not for the moment. But when she did dry her tears, put herself together, she saw the quiet smile on Tal's face.

Dale said, too. And when Tal, muttering something about coming back later, lunged out of the room, Devona turned stricken eyes to meet Dale's.

"Now I've done it," she said. "Tal knows!"

"He mustn't!" Dale's face clouded with anxiety instantly. "You're engaged to him! You're going to stay engaged! To-morrow is your wedding day, isn't it?"

Devona glanced to the window where a cold, foggy dawn was already pushing back the darkness of this past night. "Yes—my wedding day."

"Go call Tal back," Dale said, angry now. "Go tell him something—anything. Quick! Before he—"

Devona flung open the door, her heels clattering a sharp staccato on the deserted corridor floor as she ran to the elevator. No sign of Tal in the lobby below. His car gone from the parking space outside. Frantic now, she fled back to the hospital office.

"Call a taxi—quick!"

A moment later as her cab hurtled across town, Devona, for the second time, prayed that she might not be too late. Because, and realization drove horror deep into her soul, if Tal succeeded in destroying himself this time because of her, Dale would never forgive her. She would never forgive herself! Never!

She went directly to the old Brasher home. Tal had not been there since morning. Nor was there any message at her hotel. The sleepy clerk hadn't seen any one. Nor the night watchman at the office building where Tal had been working with publicity men.

By 10 o'clock that morning, Devona had been everywhere she could think of. Absolutely no trace of Talbot.

Desperate, exhausted, she returned to the hospital.

Dale, ashen but calm, was dressed now, his coat flung over the heavily bandaged shoulder, the sleeve dangling. He looked up anxiously.

"You didn't find him?"

Wearily, hopelessly, Devona shook her head. "No, not yet."

They called the police then. And every hospital and every morgue in the county. Still—no Talbot.

Dale's anxiety grew hourly. And with it, Devona's selfrecrimination. Why hadn't she used her head? Why had she let happen the very thing they had both decided must never happen? Three lives ruined now. And all because she'd so selfishly—so thoughtlessly—

"Please, Dale, can't I do something?" she begged, frantically. Can't I hunt—somewhere. He must be—

Dale nodded. "I'll go with you."

"But you can't! Your shoulder. It's all right. Come on."

The nurses looked skeptical and the doctor shook his head, but Dale paid no attention. He merely turned the car keys into her hand, said curtly: "You drive. We'll start with the bars."

They went to every bar in Los Angeles. Aching tired, she was sure they couldn't have missed one. To movie theatres, where they flashed Tal's name on the screen. Back to the police station. Everywhere. Still—no Tal.

It was as if he had simply vanished into thin air.

Radical Reform

Sergeant Pilots Will Now Mess With Officers in Western Desert

A sensible reform has been made in the Western Desert, and it may lead to others. In future the sergeant pilots in the fighter squadrons will mess with the officer pilots.

The distinction drawn between the two sets of men is all the more ridiculous because operation flights are often led by sergeant pilots.

One distinction has thus been abolished, and it would be well also to abolish the custom of giving one kind of reward and decoration to commissioned pilots and another to sergeant pilots.

The officer who has made this change gave sound reasons for it. One is that the officers' mess often entertains visitors who are senior officers with wide experience, and their conversation is instructive for younger men whose experience necessarily has been much more limited.

The second reason the officer gave was that the discussion of the details of an operation that has just been carried out is part of a flying man's training, and it was therefore absurd to break up the men who had taken part in it as soon as they returned and to send them to separate messes.

It shows how conservative the Services are that these considerations have been appreciated only in the third year of the war. But the English caste system dies hard—Manchester Guardian.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER

Back it up right now and feel like a million!

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, supplies new energy, allows proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order, you feel miserable. You become constipated, sluggish and listless. You can't work properly. You feel "rattled"—headachy, backachy, dizzy, dragged out all the time.

For over 25 years thousands have won prompt relief from these ailments—with Fruit-A-Tives. So can you now. Try Fruit-A-Tives—you'll be simply delighted how quickly you'll feel like a new person, happy and well again. 25¢. 50¢.

Crew Of Trawlers Operating From Hull Prove Good Marksman

Hull, for so long target for the Luftwaffe, has been hitting back hard. Squadron Leader Thompson of the city, recently captured a U-boat, and now a Hull armed trawler has sent one to the bottom.

But then, Hull has been hitting back almost from the start of the war. In the early days the little ships that sailed in and out of the port so gallantly carried no arms, and when the Nazi boys flew over them for a little shooting and bombing practice their only defence lay in the expert seamanship and evading tactics of their skippers.

About the first thing the little ships did when they came in again was to send a deputation along to the Port Admiral to ask for a gun. Eventually guns were forthcoming. The seamen's gunnery schools turned out marksmen in next to no time.

I used to watch these men of the little ships at their training, serious-faced, with old blue jerseys up to their necks and old floppy caps perched well back on their heads. One of the most moving sights in all the world was to see one of these little ships making a U-turn, down river with a gun poked out from its bows at the angle of a Churchill cigar.

Soon, some of the Nazi boys who came over stayed over.

Mind you, they did not all get the guns they clamored for—not at first. There was a little coastwise boat going about the North Sea, shipped by a tough little man, who could talk somewhat sourly about the Admiralty and its regulations. It seems he could not have a gun because his boat was not big enough. Not big enough, indeed! Well, anyway, it was big enough to do some really smart manoeuvring the day one of our own planes came down into the sea, and big enough to take the pilot of the plane aboard.

"Splendid!" said the Admiralty heartily when they heard all about it. They were so pleased with the skipper's smart performance that they wanted to know what they could do for him. They had forgotten all about the matter of the gun. The skipper had not.

"What about it now?" he demanded grimly.

He got it—Leeds Yorkshire Post.

Barite in Canada

Developments On Deposit In Nova Scotia Will Increase Production

Production of barite in Canada which in 1940 amounted to only 330 tons, the department of mines and resources announces, is likely to reach an annual rate considerably in excess of 100 times that figure as outcome of developments now under way on a deposit at Pembroke, Harbourside, Nova Scotia.

Barite is used in the production of oil, where advantage is taken of its relatively high specific gravity to aid in controlling gas pressure. It is also widely used as an inert filler in rubber, paper, oilcloth, textiles, leather and plastics and as pigment and extender in paints.

Danes Bent On Sabotage

Put Metal Fillings In Pork Shipments Going To Germany

Danes filled cases of pork consigned to Germany with metal fillings, said R. S. Hudson, minister of agriculture, describing conditions in occupied Europe in a speech at Norwich, England. He based his remarks on information from the Ministry of Economic Warfare.

The metal fillings were an example of sabotage by the Danes, who were compelled to send all their exports to Germany. Mr. Hudson said Danish farmers have had no oilcake for months, even for dairy cows. There was no prospect of them getting any until after the war.

In Holland finest strains of bulbs have been bought up by the Germans and ground down into coffee substitute. Dutch farmers were short of fertilizers—they had less than 40 per cent. of normal supplies of phosphates and less than 70 per cent. of normal supplies of nitrogen.

In Belgium the food shortage was so acute seed potatoes were dug up by night by hungry villagers, last spring. Guards had to be posted in the fields to stop this. Much of the livestock, particularly pigs and poultry, had been taken away by the Germans.

In France the bullock-fattening industry of Soissons and St. Quentin had been destroyed because the best animals had been removed to Germany and could not be replaced. Oilcake was non-existent and sugar beet residues only half what they were before the war.

Life-Saving Equipment

Shipwrecked Sailors Now Have Better Chance Of Being Rescued

Great strides have been made in the past year or two in perfecting life-saving equipment for shipwrecked sailors. One of the problems facing those charged with designing new equipment was the need of saving sailors and passengers from Nazi bullets as well as hungry waters.

One type of life-saving belt has a flashing red lamp attached by a long cord. This is so that the lighted lamp will not disclose the location of the seaman to the enemy. For it has been learned by tragic experience that Nazi-U-boats and planes make a habit of deliberately machine-gunning men, women, too, who are floating helplessly in the water.

So the light to save life at sea cannot be directed at the sea alone as long as such people as Nazis are in the world.

Another of the new devices is a lamp that flashes the SOS signal in red light. This electric lamp is attached to all rafts on merchant ships and it begins operating automatically the moment the raft hits the water.

Life-saving vests also have a red flashlight attached, with which the wearer can attract the attention of rescue craft.—Edmonton Journal.

SMARTLY STYLED CURTAIN ANY BEGINNER CAN MAKE

Swag Tacked To Valance Board

So patrician, these draperies topped with a graceful swag! You may make them yourself—combining just the colors for your room. Rayon damask in dusty rose for the draperies, rayon satin for the swag, brown fringe for trimming—that's one stunning choice.

To have your draperies hang beautifully, correct measuring is necessary—but easy.

For length, measure from top of window casing to floor, adding 10 or 15 inches if you wish your draperies to extend on floor. Lined draperies need another 2 inches for a single turn hem and for top turn-in 4 to 7 inches.

For width, just measure the space the curtain will cover and add 50 per cent. for folds.

The swag starts as a straight piece a little wider than the draperies. Slant ends and curve bottom edge as the diagram shows. And, when the swag's lined and trimmed, tack it to valance board.

Our 32-page booklet has exact diagrams and directions for making many attractive styles of draperies, drapery-curtains and glass curtains. Tells how to trim; make swags, valances.

RED CROSS MAKES DOMINION WIDE APPEAL FOR MEDICAL AND HOSPITAL SUPPLIES FOR RUSSIAN ARMY RELIEF

Ottawa, November 29.—"The courage and sacrifices of the Russian armies in the gigantic struggle now going on have not only earned the profound admiration of the whole democratic world, but have also created an earnest desire in all sections to send them all possible aid," declared J. T. Thorson, minister of national war services, today.

Endorsing the dominion-wide appeal of the Canadian Red Cross for $500,000, to purchase medical and hospital supplies for the Soviet Union, the minister said it should be one of the most popular appeals ever presented to the people of Canada.

"I am confident," he added "that this appeal will meet with a ready response and I urge all sections of the Canadian public to support it wholeheartedly. By doing so, we will not only be aiding our own cause, but demonstrating to our Russian ally our sympathy and admiration for the gallant fight they are waging."

In Britain, he declared, Mrs. Winston Churchill has announced that the British Red Cross, in addition to its other heavy war responsibilities, is raising $5,000,000 for medical aid for Russia, while Australia, New Zealand and other parts of the Empire have also started similar appeals.

"Individuals and groups in all parts of Canada have urged that a national appeal for Russian aid be undertaken and the government is pleased that the appeal has been unified under the Canadian Red Cross, whose vast experience in meeting medical needs will ensure that the best possible use of the money is made," he said.

Alberta Wheat Pool Convention Hears Good Reports of Past Year's Business

ALBERTA WHEAT POOL CONVENTION

The nineteenth annual meeting of the delegates of the Alberta Wheat Pool opened in Calgary on Tuesday, November 25th. Sixty-six delegates were in attendance. Lew Hutchinson, chairman of the board, welcomed members to the convention. He spoke but briefly, and in the course of his remarks paid tribute to the late Henry Wise Wood, actual founder of the Pool, as a man whose actions were not spectacular but the results of which stand as a monument to him today.

The board of directors' report reviewed the past crop year in regard to acreages, yields, legislation affecting farmers and internal business of the organization. It stated that Pool facilities in the province handled 28.9 per cent of all wheat and coarse grains delivered to country elevators or over the platform during the 1940-41 crop year, ended July 31st. Total deliveries amounted to 184,867,350 bushels with the bulk of that confined to wheat and approximately 25,000,000 to coarse grains. The Pool's share was 49,738,796 bus. A review of promotional activities showed the Pool has sponsored junior wheat clubs, girls' garden clubs, grain judging competitions, and has participated in the school of community life held at Olds, conducted extensive feeding tests and assisted in numerous other work helpful to agriculture as a whole.

The report of R. D. Purdy, general manager, showed that operations of Alberta Wheat Pool for the crop year 1940-41 were satisfactory.

The report showed net earnings during the 1940-41 season at $1,766,741.37, while depreciation on elevator equipment and properties totaled $841,230.70. A year's interest was paid the province on account of the 1929 overpayment, amounting to $201,902.08.

The net surplus for the season, credited to undistributed elevator earnings, was $723,608.59, despite a reduction of one-third in storage rates and a half-cent narrower spread than effective the preceding year on street prices.

The larger crop resulted in handlings through the Pool system being increased by approximately 4,400,000 bushels over the previous year. This represented a financial improvement of approximately $200,000.

Part of the earnings was also accounted for by additional space being made available. Considerable of this space in the form of 340 temporary annexes at country points was written off on the basis of 50 per cent of original cost, or $343,000.

Breaking down the handling figures Mr. Purdy showed that each of the 425 country elevators averaged 115,700 bushels as compared with 105,508 bushels during the previous year.

PRICE CEILING ORDER IS NOW LAW

Attention is directed to the advertisement appearing in this issue from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board setting forth the requirements under the Price Ceiling Order which came into effect on December 1st. While the Board acts for the co-operation of everybody in complying with the provisions of the order, there are drastic fines provided for offences against this law. Consumers, retailers, wholesalers as well as a large number of services are affected by this law and it is well that each and every one acquaint themselves with every phase of the Order. The Board is opening regional offices throughout Canada where problems may be discussed, and a pamphlet will be issued soon setting forth how each branch of business must apply the regulation to its own operation.

The Price Ceiling Law is vital to Canada's war effort. Its regulations will be enforced. This is one of the strongest moves the federal government has made to prevent inflation since the war began.

CREAM AND HOG SHIPPERS WAR SAVINGS PLAN

Mr. Pepper of the War Savings Committee Edmonton, was in town this week and put forth a plan where hog shippers and cream shippers may if they wish assist the war effort by purchasing war savings certificates.

The creamery manager is prepared to deduct 25c per can of cream delivered for the purchase of War Savings Certificates, when authorized to do so. When sufficient money is deducted a Certificate will be issued from Ottawa and sent to the owner. The same plan applies to hog shippers but it is suggested that 50c per hog be deducted when hogs are sold. By investing in War Savings Certificates you are building up a cash reserve for yourself and your family. Canada urgently needs your help. Remember you are saving your money and lending it to Canada not subscribing or giving it. The scheme is not compulsory.

THE SECRET DOCUMENT

In the "Secret Document" of the Nazis, referred to by President Roosevelt, a plan is disclosed to abolish all existing religions, Catholic, Protestant, Jewish as well as others. Instead a "National Church" will be formed with Mein Kampf taking the place of the Bible. We quote some of the document:

"The National Church will clear away from its altars all crucifixes, Bibles and pictures of saints." "On the altars there must be nothing but Mein Kampf (to the German nation, and therefore to God, the most sacred book); and to the left, a sword."

"The National Church does not acknowledge the forgiveness of sins."

"The National Church abolishes confirmation and religious education, as well as the Communion."

"On the day of its foundation the Christian cross must be removed from all churches, cathedrals and chapels—and must be superseded by the symbol of the swastika."

"The National Church has to take severe measures to prevent the Bible being imported into Germany."

"The National Church is determined to exterminate irrevocably the strange and foreign Christian faiths."

"The National Church has no scruples, pastors, chaplains or priests, but National Reich orators are to speak in them."

The National Church repudiates christening of German children with water and the Holy Ghost."

"The marriage ceremony will consist of taking an oath, placing the right hand on the sword. There will be no usual kneeling in the National Church."

When two glasses have stuck together, try this: Drop a little glycerin between them; after a few minutes the glycerin will have lubricated them so that they will separate with a little twisting.

A little chili sauce mixed with finely chopped parsley gives a piquant topping to jellied soups. Remember always to include a wedge of lemon. These soups need the lemon tang.

To help preserve the color of beets and red cabbage when cooking, use a tablespoon of vinegar to each quart of water.

Canada's strength is your strength, yours and your fellow citizens. By saving you can turn your strength into effective power for war or peace.

Saving is more vital now than ever before.

It's wise to anticipate the needs of tomorrow, rather than satisfy the impulses of today. You acquire a thrift habit, bringing a constructive force into your life and in a broader sense—into Canada as a whole.

VIKING ITEMS

A feeling of gloom was spread over the community on Tuesday, November 25th, when news of the death of Lar Kelly was announced.

He had been in poor health for the last few years and had suffered a recurrence of his illness about ten days previous to his death. While everyone knew that he was seriously ill, no one expected that his death would come so suddenly. He was attended during his last illness by his pastor, Father O'Neill, who administered the last rites of the Church, and prepared him for his passing.

The late Mr. Kelly was born in MacGillivray, Ontario, on 26 of August, 1880, the son of William Kelly and Margaret Barry. He attended St. Peter's School, and later went to St. Thomas College, Sandwich, Ontario. In 1907, he came to Western Canada, and took up a homestead in the Viking district.

In 1910, he entered the hardware business in partnership with Mr. J. C. Hennessey, and continued in that business until the time of his death. He was, for many years, the Secretary for the municipality of Iron Creek, and was a member of the Village Council during the years 1925-26-27. He was an unaffected, generous and kindly man who was known far and wide for his many sterling qualities. He was never too busy to listen to one and all, was ever present in time of need, and could always be depended upon to assist in the hour of distress. All in all Lar Kelly was a gracious character and his death will prove a distinct loss to Viking and vicinity.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and six children, Fred, Harold, Margaret, Leo, May and Elmo; also one brother, W. J. Kelly, of Viking. Another brother, Joseph, predeceased him many years ago.

His funeral cortege moved from the Undertaking Parlors to St. Mary's Church, where Requiem High Mass was sung at 10:00 o'clock on Friday morning, Nov. 28. Burial took place in Mt. Carmel Cemetery, Mr. J. C. Hennessey being in charge of the arrangements.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Wm. Comisarow, H. Rollans, A. Streit, J. L. Slavik, Clem Loughlin and G. Stalker.

J. Fletcher, prominent Irma hardware man, is assisting in stock taking at the Kelly hardware here this week.

Les Geller and Miss Margaret Kelly arrived from Detroit, Michigan on the early train Friday to be in attendance at the funeral of the late Lar Kelly. They expect to return to Detroit this week.

After three days of rather cold and windy weather, a chinook came up from the south on Sunday and the weather has been the mildest in years at this time of year. Instead of a snow storm on Tuesday there was a dust storm!

Kenneth R. McDonald, a brother of D. Roy McDonald, who was on his way through Viking on Friday morning on the Flyer, en route to Vancouver to join the Royal Canadian navy, stopped off to chat a few minutes with his brother and family. He was in charge of a party of young naval volunteers.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Leland have moved to Minburn to make their home. Mrs. Leland has been in the Mannville hospital as the result of an injury to her knee which she got just before leaving this district. We are glad to report she is recovering rapidly.

Mrs. Gilbert Thompson arrived home from Viking hospital with her infant daughter last week. Both are doing very well.

Hans Hansson of the R.C.A.F. at Edmonton was among the dancers at Lake Alice school on Friday night.

Bobbie Mansell was home from Brandon on embarkation leave a few days last week. On Friday evening, Nov. 28th, a number of his young friends gathered at his sister's home, Mrs. Len Drury, to give him a rousing farewell. A sumptuous fowl supper was served to nearly twenty guests and the evening was enjoyed in chatter until Bob had to leave for his train at 9 p.m. He bid farewell to us all and left on the Flyer for Brandon. The community wishes him bon voyage and happy landings.

George Codd visited his home over a 48 hour leave from service during the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Leland have moved to the home formerly occupied by Bernard's parents. This plan is much more convenient in doing chores and looking after his parents' interests.

Miss Margaret Wright writes that she has purchased a small home in Edmonton and she, her aunt and uncle, are comfortably settled there.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad LaFleur drove over from Ryley Sunday to spend the day with Mrs. LaFleur's parents.

The Chinook on Sunday left the countryside bare of snow, an unusual condition on December 1st. It is a great boon to farmers in conserving feed, especially those who are grazing the stock and can let the stock feed on stubble fields.

The annual banquet of the W.I. will be held in the Viking hotel, December 13th, at 7 p.m. Please get your tickets in advance from Mrs. Lundahl or Mrs. Olsenberg. 75c per person.

Mike Johnson, well known local contractor and builder, had a tonsil operation at the local hospital this week and is doing alright.

Fletcher Harrison, veteran of the first Great War, has joined up with the Veteran Guards unit and is at present stationed in Edmonton.

Fred Roddick of the R.C.A.F. writes an interesting letter from Yorkton where he is flying with the R.C.A.F. Writing home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Roddick here, he tells of his plane almost being blown out the sky by a 75 mile per hour wind but the machine weathered the storm O.K. and landed safely.

Reports are that Pte. Alan Jones has arrived "somewhere in England" with a Canadian unit.

Six recruits were examined here during the visit of Capt. Kelly's recruiting party on Monday and sent to Edmonton for further approval.

This column joins with the community in wishing our boys overseas in the army, on the sea and in the air, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, wherever they may be.

Dave Cary arrived safely overseas and has begun his duties with the Royal Navy fleet air arm.

A variety concert is being held in the Elks hall on Friday evening of this week, commencing at 8:15 p.m. The Viking Glee Club and the High School Dramatics Club, assisted by local artists, have arranged a most varied program that should appeal to the public. Under direction of Mr. W. S. Elliott, the glee club and the men's chorus have been rehearsing diligently. A play is also being presented by the high school dramatics club, which should round out a real variety concert.

Tickets are on sale now: Adults 35c; high school 25c; and children 15c.

A portion of the proceeds will go towards the Russian relief fund for medical and hospital supplies. Come and enjoy an evening of home talent.

THE PRICE CEILING ORDER IS NOW LAW

A fine up to $5,000 and two years imprisonment is provided for offences against this law

What You Must Do to Comply With The Law

1. As a Consumer

You must not buy goods or services for more than the highest price charged for such goods or services during the basic period, September 15 to October 11. If in doubt, ask your merchant for proof the price he asks is a lawful price under the Price Ceiling order. Normal seasonal price changes in fresh fruits and vegetables and greenhouse products are exempt.

2. As a Retailer

You must not sell goods or services for more than the highest price at which you sold such goods or services in the basic period, September 15 to October 11.

You must not buy goods or services from manufacturers or wholesalers or any other sources for more than the highest price you paid them in the basic period.

It is intended that cases of serious hardship should be adjusted by reducing the cost of merchandise to the retailer. Retailers whose cost of merchandise delivered to them after November 30 is too high in relation to the ceiling prices, should get in touch with their suppliers and try to arrange an adjustment fair to both parties.

The price of goods of a kind or quality not sold during the basic period must not be more than the highest price charged for substantially similar goods in the basic period.

3. As a Wholesaler

You must not sell goods or services at more than your highest price (less discounts then prevailing) for such goods or services during the basic period, September 15 to October 11. You must not buy goods or services for more than the highest price paid during the basic period.

Wholesalers will be expected in some cases to reduce their prices below the ceiling in order that their retail accounts may carry on. Wholesalers in turn may have to ask their suppliers for price reductions.

The continued flow of goods through normal channels is of the utmost importance and the Board will intervene if suppliers divert business abnormally from one customer to another.

4. As a Manufacturer

You must not sell at prices higher than your highest price (less discount then prevailing) during the basic period, September 15 to October 11.

In some cases it will be necessary for manufacturers to reduce their prices below the ceiling so that wholesale and retail accounts may carry on.

Where maintenance of the retail ceiling requires manufacturers' prices to be substantially reduced, the Board will investigate and in proper cases will afford necessary relief.

Imports

Retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers are assured by the Board that any considerable increases in the costs of import of essential goods will be covered either by subsidies or by adjustment of taxes. Details will be announced shortly.

Services Also Come Under This Law

The Price Ceiling law also applies to rates and charges for electricity, gas, steam heat, water, telegraph, wireless, telephone, provision of dock, harbour and pier facilities; warehousing and storage; manufacturing processes performed on a commission or custom basis; undertaking and embalming; laundering, cleaning, tailoring and dressmaking; hairdressing, barbering and beauty parlor services; plumbing, heating, painting and decorating; cleaning and renovating; repairing of all kinds; supplying of meals, refreshments and beverages; exhibiting of motion pictures.

NO CHEATING OR EVASION OF THE PRICE CEILING LAW WILL BE TOLERATED

"How the Price Law Works," a pamphlet setting forth how each branch of business must apply the regulations to its own operation will shortly be available at Post Offices and Branch Banks.

The Board will soon open Regional Offices throughout Canada where problems may be discussed. These Offices will co-operate with business in the adjustment of difficulties.

The Price Ceiling law is vital to Canada's war effort.

AVOID FROZEN MILK AND CREAM

While the weather man has been particularly kind these past few weeks, colder weather may be expected in the near future. During the winter months, both creameries and cheese factories receive a considerable quantity of frozen cream and milk.

High quality butter and cheese cannot be manufactured from frozen products received from the farms.

The texture of the finished product is rough and mealy, often causing a loss in grade, resulting in financial loss to both factory and patron.

Butterfat losses in the butter-milk and whey are abnormally high when manufactured from frozen cream and milk.

It is impossible to secure representative samples for the Babcock test, used as a basis for payment.

Variation in test are the cause of many complaints during the winter months.

For these reasons, it is important that milk and cream be delivered to the factory in a non-frozen condition.

Freezing at the farms may be prevented by immersing the cans in a tank of water.

To avoid freezing in transit the cans should be protected with heavy burlap.

Producers can save themselves and the industry many dollars by following these simple instructions.

A sharp nose indicates curiosity, says an authority on physiognomy—and a flat one too much curiosity.

Heard at the court house: "That fellow is hunting trouble." "How do you know?" "He is looking for the place to get a marriage license."

A girl can get more by pouting during courtship than by shouting after marriage, reports a careful observer.

"Well son how are your marks?" asked a local father of a high school boy here the other day. "They're under water," the young fellow replied. "What do you mean, under water?" "Below 'C' level," was the reply.

Delegates Object To Enlarged Areas

MUNICIPAL DISTRICTS CONVENTION VOTES AGAINST ENLARGED AREAS

Delegates to the municipal districts convention held in Edmonton last week to the number of 230, passed with only one dissenting vote a resolution protesting against any plan of reorganization on the part of the department of municipal affairs, contemplating the general consolidation of municipal districts into large units.

Prior to the passing of the resolution drawn up by the executive to condense ideas submitted in several resolutions, Hon. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs, spoke to the meeting and outlined the government's stand on the matter.

Embodied in the resolution were these three points, among others:

1. That before any plan is put into effect in any area there should be at least six months' notice to the councils of the municipal districts affected so as to afford ample opportunity for discussion and for making such representations as may be necessary.

2. That no consolidation be put into effect in any area without the ratepayers being given an opportunity to vote thereon at a plebiscite.

3. That if notwithstanding the views of this organization the government proceeds to carry out its announced intention of setting up certain trial units, then at least two years should be allowed for observation of these units before any other units are established.

Hon. Mr. Maynard reminded the municipal delegates that the government has so far taken into consideration all suggestions that have been presented to them from councils of municipalities involved in the trial areas, and that his department was prepared and anxious to continue doing so.

He further stated that there was nothing binding to the proposals as have been put forth in the two trial areas.

The World of Wheat

by H. G. L. Strange

Farmers have had another year's experience with different wheat varieties, but many are still asking "Which variety is the best?" Definite advice about the best variety for an individual farm can not be given, but some broad suggestions can be made.

In Manitoba and in the eastern part of Saskatchewan only rust-resistant varieties should be grown. "Crop Testing Plan" agents, after discussion with farmers, report that demands from farmers for new seed will be for the following varieties in order of quantities required: Thatcher, Regent, Reliance and Apex. In western Saskatchewan Marquis and Reliance still do well and will be in demand.

In Alberta, usually considered out of the rust area, agents report demands for seed will be in the following order: Red Bobs, Marquis and Thatcher, with some demand for Regent.

Any of the varieties named will give any farmer reasonable satisfaction. Some varieties, however, will do somewhat better than others in a particular district and even on a particular farm. A farmer can only discover which variety is actually the best for himself by watching the results of the crops in his own district, and perhaps by making a small variety test on his own farm.

What The Air Waves Are Saying Over Station CJCA

I think that this week I should start off this column with a few answers to some of the questions that I have been getting from time to time. Numerous listeners to the "Blended Rhythm" program, heard from CJCA Tuesdays at 9 p.m. have been asking is the Georgia Dey, who is one of the featured vocalists on the program, is the same Georgia that used to be with Mart Kenny . . . and the answer is "yes." So, if you are one of the thousands who like and enjoy the voice of Georgia Dey, you will do well to make a note of this. If, by any chance, you haven't yet heard the "Blended Rhythm" program, make a date to be at your radio next Tuesday night at 9 for this very enjoyable program of the pick of the music of today.

Another question that I have been asked quite frequently is "When are the Hometime Boys to be heard?" Well, I know that this program has wandered pretty well all over our schedule, but you'll be able to find them every Thursday night at 9:30 for the next little while. Incidentally, have you any suggestions to make on this program? If you have, drop me a line and we'll see what can be done.

Just about everybody listens to the news these days with a certain amount of trepidation . . . wondering if it is going to be good news or not. But there is one newscast that no one wants to miss and that is the news of the moment as given in song by Al and Bob Harvey on the "Good Luck" program heard from CJCA every Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning at 9:50. For a thoroughly enjoyable 10 minutes of fun and laughter, don't miss this "Good Luck" show.

C.N.R. JOINS IN DOMINION CAMPAIGN AGAINST CARELESS TALK

Montreal, Dec. 1—The Canadian National Railways have taken steps to co-operate with the department of national war services in the campaign to warn the public against careless talk which might aid the enemy, according to an announcement made at headquarters of the national war services.

Easily heard cards have been prepared in eye-catching styles and will be placed in conspicuous positions in every sleeping, parlor and dining car and every coach operated throughout the Canadian National railways system. The message, which is adapted from one of the posters issued by the department of national defence, is brief and direct: "Warning" calls the notice, "Careless talk may help the enemy. Do not discuss: ship movements, defence plans, munitions factories, troop movements, harbor facilities, aircraft production, supply stores. Be on your guard."

Very Important Job

Man And His Sheep Protect Munitions Plant In Australia

A shepherd, with a farmer's walk, wide hat and leggings, follows his calling at a group of munitions factories on the outskirts of Melbourne. With his dog and his flock of sheep, he is an incongruous figure among buildings from which comes the unceasing roar of machinery grinding out the implements of death.

He and his sheep are important in the safe working of the place. Their purpose is simple—to keep down the grass.

Spaces separating buildings scattered for safety over hundreds of acres must be well grassed, for dust and grit blown into danger buildings might cause friction in a machine, explosion of a charge, death to a man or many men. And long dry grass in summer might mean a grass fire, and obvious, terrible peril.

So while danger bells ring warning that no man may go near buildings in which machines, controlled from a distance, mix potent agents of death, the sheep grass unperturbed around.

Except in so far as they may bring greater loss to the enemy and victory in a cause worth more than money, the factory's war products must be written off the nation's accounts as dead loss the instant they explode; but the peaceful sheep make profits.

Want Beautiful City

People Of Liverpool Have Splendid Chance When They Rebuild

"We have been given the chance once, and once only, of building up a beautiful city that shall be the joy of the whole world and worthy of the courageous people who have stood their ground during the raids without flinching," said the Lord Mayor (Alderman Sir Sydney Jones), addressing the Liverpool Luncheon Club.

Liverpool, unfortunately, was built mainly in the nineteenth century, and there was not much of it that we could look upon with any pride, said Sir Sydney. Visitors from other countries spoke in glowing terms of the citizens and their institutions, but generally added that the city itself was grim, and perhaps it was. The damage we had suffered now gave us the opportunity of amending the failures of the past—Liverpool Post.

Symbols Of Victory

Cargo Ships For Britain Have Names Beginning With V

The names so far given to cargo ships under construction at Richmond, California, for the British indicate a carryover of the new somewhat muted "V" campaign. The five ships already launched are the Ocean Vanguard, Ocean Vigil, Ocean Voice, Ocean Venture and Ocean Viking. Sixty ships in all are to be built at the Richmond yard and at a second yard in South Portland, Maine, for the account of the British Purchasing Commission. The "V" section of the dictionary is not thick, but it will suffice to provide good names for at least sixty vessels. Virtue and valor and victory and vim and vigor are still in reserve, to mention but a few variants out of a vast and valuable variety—New York Sun.

Make Big Contribution

Gold Miners In Canada Are Helping With War Effort

Gold miners throughout Canada are making a vital contribution to the Canadian war effort. A force of little more than 25,000 men is producing over $200,000,000 a year in gold. This amount of gold would fully pay for more than 8,000 Spitfires a year. In the amount of munitions and war equipment, the product of their work will pay for, possibly no other group of men of equal size anywhere else in the world will compare with that of the 25,000 men who are digging out the gold from the mines of Canada—Toronto Saturday Night.

Scrap Iron And Steel

Have To Be Conserved More Especially In War Time

The National Revenue Review says: Scrap is one of the important primary materials of the iron and steel industry. In the manufacture of steel and of iron castings it replaces pig iron ton for ton while in rolling and stamping mills substantial tonnages are re-rolled and re-shaped into a variety of commercial products. More than 1.8 million tons of scrap iron and steel were used in Canadian industry in 1940, this tremendous tonnage assuming special significance in wartime from the standpoint of conservation as well as from the fact that it would require about 3½ million tons of iron ore, most of which must be imported, to supply this amount of new metal. Scrap is anything of iron and steel that is the waste or by-product of manufacturing or that has been discarded on account of failure, obsolescence or other factors that have rendered it unfit for further use in its present form. It is rails that have been discarded, automobiles that have been scrapped, freight cars and locomotives that have been withdrawn from service, machines that have outlived their usefulness, turnings from machinery operations, waste from stampings, and so on.

A Gentleman Thug

Hitler Sets Great Store By Himmler's Right Hand Man

Reinhard Heydrich, Himmler's right hand man in charge of Gestapo operations, is one of the handsomest figures in the Nazi hierarchy, says the London correspondent of the Ottawa Journal. He is also, possibly next to his formidable chief, about the most ruthless. Thirty-eight years of age, six-foot tall, blue-eyed, with blond complexion and fair hair, he is the approved "pure Nordic" model. But he has a dark criminal past, and is a thug of the first water. He has been responsible for the shooting of hostages in France, Belgium, and Norway, and has now replaced the too tolerant Baron von Neurath, one-time German ambassador in London, as Gauleiter of Bohemia and Moravia, where strikes and sabotage have caused much trouble to the German overlords.

Those who know him state that never was there a more perfect example of Hamlet's comment that "a man may smile and smile and be a villain." He combines a charming manner with completely Sadistic tendencies. Hitler sets great store by him, and doubtless he will prove a ruthless executant in his new job.

Sunflowers For Cattle

The London Sunday Express says: Sunflowers are being specially cultivated in Britain for the first time for commercial purposes at Norwich Corporation Farm. For years Continental countries have produced edible oil, paper-making material, cattle-feeding cake, chicken food, saltpetre, polish and dye from sunflower plants.

Film Has Strange Qualities

New Photographic Material Held Secret For Military Reasons

A secret material developed at Cambridge, Mass., recently makes an entirely new kind of photograph which is formed partly of light rays themselves. The new photos can do things never done before. Two can be developed on the same piece of film, one on top of the other. Three-dimensional pictures, both stills and movies, are practicable.

This new film is a secret for military reasons. It was developed by Edwin H. Land of the Polaroid Corporation, Cambridge.

The practical possibilities are tremendous. One is to make three-dimensional motion pictures which can be shown without any change in the present equipment of the theatres.

Both pictures are printed superimposed on a single standard film carrying the whole picture, so that any ordinary projector in any movie house can show it.

Furthermore, taking the pictures for this new film is easy and foolproof. It is done with a two-eyed camera, having two lenses about as wide apart as the human eyes. The two take separate pictures, seeing the scene just like a pair of eyes. These photos are developed separately, and then transferred one on top of the other to the new film.

The audience would have to use viewing glasses. But Mr. Land thinks these can be made so cheaply that they can be made part of the movie ticket, in the form of this film set in cardboard.

A Desecrated Cathedral

Historic Temple In Strasbourg Now Rendezvous Of Hitler Youth

The Church Times, London, England, has printed in a recent issue the horror of the populace at the correspondence from Alsace showing desecration of Strasbourg Cathedral, an historic temple of the Catholic faith, which has embodied the spirit of Alsace-Lorraine. The correspondent refers to the lack of enthusiasm in the German press, when the "flag with the crooked cross (swastika)" was hoisted on the cathedral, and goes on to describe what has happened since it was "defamed with the cross of blood." It is now a rendezvous of Hitler Youth, the "figures of the saints that adorned the sanctuary have been replaced by pagan statues, portraits of German leaders and actually a bust of Hitler himself has been enthroned on the high altar, exposed, as formerly was the Holy Sacrament, to the adoration of his disciples." He closes by referring to the brave resistance of the people and quotes one of their sayings in French, which means: "You may Germanize our land but our heart, never."—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

DAUGHTER OF DESTINY

—BY—
Eleanor Attbury Colton

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Just what her strange destiny might have held in store for her if Vara hadn't stepped back into her life again, Devona could never imagine. Perhaps because Vara Vadue was part of that destiny inextricably. Perhaps because it was all written in the stars for an old Indian fair to foresee—at any rate, Vara laid strong hands on the pattern threads of her daughter's life.

The message came just before dinner, Devona and Dale had spent a heart-breaking day being gay together. Gay over a delicious luncheon that neither of them tasted. Gay over shopping while Devona bought luggage and clothes for her coming wedding trip with Tal that they both tried to ignore for the moment. Gay over cocktails that only threatened to break down the reserve they were trying to build between them. Trying so hard to make love behave as friendship, passion as affection.

It wasn't working very well yet, Devona realized, catching sight of her flushed, happy face once in a back-bar mirror. But in time it could. They'd make it work! For Tal's sake they had to.

Wearily, nearly spent with the force of buffeting emotions, they had returned to the old Brasher home late that afternoon to find Tal pacing the living room frantically.

"I thought you'd never show up," he said, his eyes wild with worry. "Vara's collapsed. She's dying!"

"Vara!" Devona repeated, shocked. "Yes, and she's been calling for you. Both of you. We've got to hurry."

"Mother!" Unconsciously, Devona revealed the tie that bound her to that woman who already had brought so much sorrow into her daughter's life. After all, Vara was—mother. Dad would have wanted—

Dale drove them to the hospital with magnificent indifference to traffic regulations.

"Daughter!" a kind-faced nurse asked. "Yes. She's been asking for you. Go in."

The room was small, darkened. For a moment, Devona could scarcely see the slim form in the bed. Then it moved, raised a hand in faint gesture of welcome.

"Come in," Vara's voice but so changed. "I want you."

That effort had proved too great a drain on Vara's slim reserve and though Devona went to her side in—stantly, Vara had already fainted away. Frightened, Devona rang for the nurse.

"She's still too weak. You'll have to wait," the nurse said, crisp starched skirts rustling like old parchment.

And that waiting seemed endless. What message could Vara have that was so important, so great a weight on her mind that even in her weakness, her delirium, she clamored for a chance to tell it.

Dale and Tal both paced the long hospital corridor with her. Every time Vara's door opened they all three started, anxiously. Strange, Devona thought wryly, how each of them was bound to that slim, inert form lying there in that darkened room. Each in a different way. But bound, nevertheless.

"You needn't stay, Dale," Devona suggested after the first fruitless hour. "I hate taking so much of your precious time and—"

"Ship it," he muttered.

But in the end, they all had to go. The doctor, shaking his head anxiously, said Vara was much too overwrought about something to be disturbed. Any excitement, any strain on her already-weakened heart might prove fatal. Since mention of his daughter's name seemed to upset her, it might be several days before she could see her.

"I'll have to stay, Tal," Devona said later that evening when they were back in the Brasher drawing room. "After all—she is my mother. No matter what has happened. And she needs me now."

"Sure. Of course. We'll just postpone things until she's O.K.," Tal said, smiling, taking her hand.

"I hate upsetting your plans—" "As it happens, you aren't," Tal came to perch on the arm of her chair. "Say Dorset—she's the star for this show I'm working on—is arriving from San Francisco in a couple of days. I'm to meet her and go over some of the scenes. We'd have had to come back from Reno, anyway, darling. So—you see it's working out O.K. all around."

Was it? Devona wondered, and involuntarily let her glance slip to Dale's grim face, linger for a moment.

Then she caught it back. Tal's eagerness, his renewed self-confidence had been bought at great price. But, she smiled up at him now, it was worth it.

Devona went to the hospital every day. But it was nearly a week before they let her see Vara. And when they did, Devona gasped with shock. Not Vara! Not that hollow-checked, pallid face against the pillow! It couldn't be.

"You're being swell about this, aren't you Devona?" Dale smiled at her one afternoon when Tal was too busy with conferences to call for her after visiting hours at the hospital. "After all she didn't take her responsibilities toward you very seriously."

"She's ill now. And needs me. It's not being noble, Dale," Devona smiled wryly. "It's just being—dutiful."

Dale pressed her hand fiercely. "You're always that, aren't you? What would happen, I wonder, if we didn't either of us have a shred of conscience between us?"

Tears rushed into Devona's eyes again as they'd had a way of doing these past hectic days. Tears she couldn't control. Tears that were always ready to put all the world out of focus.

"Look here. Let's pretend we have no conscience—just for tonight," Dale suggested as if he'd read her thought. "Tal's tied up with this Dorset dame, beating her around Los Angeles while she makes up her mind if she likes the dialogue he's written for her. And surely there'd be nothing wrong in—say, our having dinner somewhere fancy and treating ourselves to a little dancing. Tal wouldn't care. And after all, we've not much to—remember."

There'd be harm, all right. Plenty of it. Every time they were together it was harder to go on with this masquerade. But, Devona couldn't refuse. One last glorious evening with Dale all to herself! She was human, after all!

Devona dressed carefully. One of the pretty lime green dinner gowns she'd selected as part of her trousseau. The color made her skin seem gardenia white, her hair blue-black. Slippers to match, a luxurious silver fox cape—Tal's engagement present to her. She stroked the soft fur a little guiltily. This wasn't being exactly fair to Tal, she realized herself. Not the dinner itself, nor the dancing—but the racing, tremulous thrill she couldn't suppress.

Determinedly, Devona tried to set a keynote of gay friendliness from the moment Dale crossed the Brownstone's lobby to meet her.

"Look at the girl," he grinned, as she slipped her arm through his. "Isn't she gorgeous?"

"Isn't she, though?" Devona laughed back at him. "And her handsome big brother is no slouch himself. What kind of mischief shall we get into, first?"

Dale accepted the keynote, pitched at his own rally to match as, over cocktails at the Top Hat and then dinner at Victor's they banded wicks as lightly as if their hearts were really in it.

"Now—let's go some place to dance," Dale suggested finally. "I crave soft music to soothe this savage soul."

So they went up to the St. Claire Roof Garden where a muted orchestra played softly under a starlit sky. The warm, balmy night, the soft strains of the music, maybe it was the touch of Dale's arm about her waist, the smoothness of his chin pressed against her forehead—something snapped the frail bond by which she held her emotions in leash. Trembling washed over Devona and she clung to him, desperately, almost frantically.

Instantly responsive, Dale's arm tightened, his head turned until his lips pressed hard against her forehead, his heart thumping against her cheek, his own was setting up.

"Darling," he whispered. "Darling, how can I ever give you up?"

"I don't—know," she whispered, shaken. "I love you so."

"I love you, too, my sweet."

After that, they drifted with the music—as if, for the moment, anyway, they had stepped into another world that held only themselves.

"Darling, we can't go through with this," Dale argued a little later as they stood looking deeply, hungrily into each other's eyes. "It's all a rotten mistake. But there's still time. We could slip over to Yuma. Once it was done—"

To Yuma. To be Dale's bride. Tonight, maybe. Details of that picture enlarged in Devona's quick imagination. To belong to him "until death"—forever and ever—Dale's! That couldn't be. Devona knew that.

Her shoulders sagged unconsciously under the burden of her renewed decision. And Dale must have realized it, too, because he said: "I know. It's no use." And something died a little in his eyes. "Remembering what we'd done to Tal

AROUND THE HOUSE

When choosing pot holders, have them large enough to protect the hands, and get flexible ones that will fit around a utensil easily. Hang them near the stove or keep them in a drawer near it. They should be of washable material.

Disconnect electric iron as soon as you have finished with it, thus preventing fires and burning out the element in the iron.

When buttering sandwiches, dip the knife in hot water frequently and it will be much easier to spread the butter.

Colored linens frequently have lint on them when ironed. To prevent this wash well by themselves and rinse thoroughly three waters. Roll in a Turkish towel for an hour and a half; straighten out and dry. Press on wrong side with a moderately warm iron.

To improve the flavor of leg of lamb, rub it with a mixture of salt, garlic, black pepper and marjoram before cooking.

IRMA U.F.C. LOCAL HAS ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL EVE

The regular monthly meeting of Irma U.F.C. local was held in Hedley's hall on Monday evening Dec. 1st at 8 p.m.

Following the regular business of the local, Dr. Greenberg put on a picture show which was very much enjoyed. After showing the five reels supplied by the University of Alberta. The Dr. showed some reels taken by himself at the Mock Battle staged by the V.V.R. at the Battle River bridge recently, one which he took this summer while holidaying in and around Prince Albert National Park and also some local pictures, all of which were both interesting and entertaining.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the doctor. After which lunch was served.

A collection was taken which amounted to $14.75.

After defraying hall expenses, the proceeds will go to the Red Cross for medical supplies to the U.S.S.R.

Watch for date of next meeting in this paper.

Mr. Motor Car or Truck Owner

Are you among the ones who always fill up with RED HEAD oil or gasoline? If you are, you will realize the saving over buying elsewhere and I wish to say here that we greatly appreciate your business. To others who buy elsewhere we ask you to give us a trial. We guarantee to save you money. We sell for little more than ½ what you pay elsewhere for oil of equal quality. Ask the ones who use it.

Keep cheese fresh by wrapping in muslin squeezed out of vinegar and water, and store in a paper bag in a cool place.

During the last stages of baking a cake a piece of greased paper on the top of it will allow the inside to cook and keep the top from burning.

Keep the comb clean by washing it regularly in warm soap water to which has been added a little ammonia. The ammonia will aid in loosening the dirt. Rinse thoroughly and dry.

When a wire basket is used for frying croquettes, dip the basket into the hot fat before placing in the croquettes. The croquettes will not stick to it when done, and will be easy to remove.

Give Your Mail The Attention You Expect It To Receive

1. PACK CAREFULLY. For outside wrapping use strong cardboard, heavy paper and tie well with good cord.

2. ADDRESS CORRECTLY. Write or print (preferably in ink) the COMPLETE address. Place your name, or box number, and return address on the outside because undeliverable articles WITHOUT your name and address on the outside have to go to the Dead Letter Office, causing delay and inconvenience.

3. MAIL EARLY. Suggested mailing dates:
Dec. 10—United States. Dec. 18—British Columbia.
Dec. 16—Maritime provinces. Dec. 20—Alta., Saskatchewan.
Dec. 17—Ont., Quebec, Man. Dec. 21—Local delivery.
